WASHINGTON, April 13 (WP). -The Senate, disregarding strong White House opposition, today passed a bill to limit presideotial powers to engage the nation in undeclared wars. The vote was attack or the imminent threat of attack, but must come back to But there was little likelihood the measure ever would become law. House approval appeared remote and some Republican senators predicted that Presider Nixon would veto the bill if it were to reach his desk.

The measure was a product of Senate frustration over the Vietnam war and drew a vigorous administration effort to kill it. Several top officials, among them Secretary of State William P. Rogers, urged in both public testimony and private messages that the legislation be rejected. Before today's vote approving PARIS, April 13 (AP).-Within wo days after the North Vietnamese offensiva began, President Nixon apparently made an effort to get secret peace talks going with the North Vietnamese, informants indicated tonight.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong from that moment on depended that now works were demanded that new regular sessions be held and, in fact, specifically proposed meetings for April 6 and for today.

Kennedy Offers Bill to Conserve Chappaquiddick as U.S. Park

By Maxine Cheshire

WASHINGTON, April 13 (WP).—In a little-publicized bill this week, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D., Mass., introduced legislation that would effectively designate the island of Chappaquiddick a national park.

Senate Bill 3485, proposed Tuesday, would establish a Nan-tucket Sound Islands Trust under the jurisdiction of the secretary of the interior and appropriate $20 million to acquire all land necessary to "preserve and conserve the unique characteristics of a unique area."

Sen. Kennedy's press secretary, Dick Drayne, said yesterday that "we were aware" that the hill might cause comment. "What kind of a senator would he be if ha hestated to introduce a bill because Chappaquiddick is involved?"

Mr. Drayne asked. "If you read the bill closely, you will find Edgartown and Poucha Pond and all the names from 1969."

The 12-page hill, in describing boundaries for lands to he covered by the trust, refers several times to the geographic point where "the unimproved dirt road, which, in a continua-tion of Chappaquiddick Road, divides this inlet from the waters known as Poucha Pond."

The road is the one traveled by the senator the night his car plunged off Dyke Bridge, carrying 28-year-old Mary Jn Kopechne to her death.

Sen. Kennedy's bill will not make the Nantucket Sound Islands into "a federal preserve" in the sense of extending the Cape Cod National Seashore as had previously been suggested

Instead, the law would establish a commission "made up of members predominantly representing the local town and county governments" who would work with the secretary of interior to carry out preservation and conservation plans.

Another Laborite Spokesman New Tremors Resigns from Shadow Cabinet Shake Iran's

The opposition Labor party lost still another front-bench spokesman today when defense specialist Robert MacLennan resigned from the shadow cabinet.

Remarks of Richard Crossman. a former Labor cabinet minister, and the results of a new publicnpinion poli meanwhile occasioned speculation that Prime Minister Edward Heath might call a general election this fall.

Mr. MacLennan, a pro-Marketeer, was the eighth shadow-government minister to resign since former deputy party leader Roy Jenkins announced Monday he was quitting over the party's anti-Common Market stance. All eight remain in the Labor party and in Parliament. Mr. Crossman, until last month editor of The New Statesman, said Mr. Jenkins's resignation from the sbadow cabinet had thrown the party into disarray and allowed safe voting majorities for the Conservatives.

Where the government had been iosing its control in the House of Commons, he wrote in the magazine, it could now assert authority and possibly call the election nearly three years "The fact that the government is now assured of safe majorities will take most of the steam from the weeks of debate on Clause One" of the Common Market legislation, he said.

At the same time, a copyrighted poll by the Opinion Research Center said Mr. Heath's personal popularity had jumped 10 percent in the past month, to 45 percent.

The poll, taken before the resignation of Mr. Jenkins, also showed a 14 percent boost in the popularity of the Conservative party as a whole-from 31 to 45

China Donates $20,000 to UN S. Africa Fund

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 13 (WP).—China made its first voluntary contribution to the United Nations resterday in the form of a cash gift of $20,000 to the Trust Fund for South Africa. The gift matches con-tributions from the Soviet Union over the last six years.

The trust fund began in 1966 in order to help "persons persecuted under the repressive and discriminatory legislation of South Africa," which enforces apartheid. The coverage was later extended to aid persons suffering from discrimination in Southwest Africa, the Portnguese colonies and Rhodesia, providing legal counsel for victims and relief for their familles as well as aid to refugees.

A total of $255,597 in contributions this year, along with pledges for an additional $142. 230, would make the 1972 figure the highest so far.

Sweden, one of the fund's five trustees, is the higgest donor, having contributed $420,105 since the beginning. Other Scandinavian nations have been proportionately generous. Gifts of the major powers have been comparatively modest—the United States total is $25,000 and Britain and France have given slightly since North Vietnamese units began moving south on Highway 13 on April 5, began early this morning when troops were seen marching down the highway toward An Loc. Tanks-about 20 at first-came in on the city from the northeast.

U.S. gunships were called in from Thalland to attack the tanks, the officers sald, but enemy anti-aircraft fire was heavy and kept the Navy jets from striking as strongly at the tanks as the, had planned.

By noon, enemy troops were re-ported in control of the northern part of the town and two tanks were inside it, the officers said. But after fighting all afternoon, the South Vietnamese defenders appeared to be regaining control of the situation.

Relief Force Stalled The relief force was 12 miles from An Loc, and not making much progress.

The possibility of the capture of An Loc, capital of a sparsely populated province, was regarded with some concern among observers in Saigon, "Militarily it's bad enough, but politically and psychologically it could be even worse to capture a provincial capital that close to Saigon," an officer said. In the north, where the North Vietnamese have a force of 20,000 to 30,000 troops, with long-range artillery and two tank battalions, low clouds that had held down U.S. air strikes lifted. Eight Navy destroyers and the cruiser Oklahoma City also pounded enemy positions on the coast of Quang Tri Province and in the Demilitarized Zone straddling the border between the two Vietnams.

Clouds that had been thick over North Vietnam also lifted today. The U.S. command announced that B-52s had hit targets in North Vietnam before dawn in the second such raid since the North Vietnamere offensive be-

The command did not say what the targets were, but informed officers said they had been made on MiG sirilelds near Vinh. The B-52s came under attack from 16 to 20 surface-to-air missiles the U.S. officers said.

[North Vietnam reported impressive victories against the air campaign might be taking a significant toll. The fighting, it said, "is still difficult."

The air campaign against the North could expand greatly once the weather improves. About 40 F-4 Phantom jets were brought to South Vietnam today to add to the roughly 600 fighter-bombers already in the country and the 100 B-52s based in Thalland and Guam.

Nixon Secretly Asked Talks After Reds Began Offensive

Press Secretary Ron Ziegler sald Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig will fly tomorrow to South Vietnam "to undertake an on-the-spot assessment of the attraction there for the President." The position of the United States, since it suspended partici-pation in the Paris talks March 23 at President Nixon's order, has been that it was prepared to negotiate if the other elde showed It was ready to perticipate in good faith, but that it would not go to the conference table under military pressure

Mr. McCloskey refused today to discuss what, if anything, happened between March 23 and the time President Nixon ordered a oew secret approach that might have suggested a new bid might be fruitful.

No Inconsistency Reporters noted the timing of the President's April 1 secret-ap-proach order—two days after North Vietnamese forces began moving across the Demilitarized Zone in what quickly became a general offensive against South Vietnam. Mr. McCloskey said he saw no inconsistency between the U.S. position that it would not negotlate under military pressure and Mr. Nixon's secret bid after the Communist offensive was already mounted

He said that the substance of the U.S. hid was that the Communists should talk at the peace table and not escalate on the bat-

The Communists, he said were "guilty of outrageous cynicism in calling on us to resume the talks when we had offered pri-vately" to resume negotiations and they had responded by an increased level of battlefield activity."

He said that it was always obvious that the United States would "not be going into renewed talks if there was an increased (battlefield) activity and, indeed, there was increased activity." A reporter asked the spokesman whether it was realistic for the administration to believe that the Communist offensive. which the United States says had been in preparation for many months, could suddenly be called off upon receipt of Mr. Nixon's new approach. Mr. McCloskey said he did not "find that insurmountable." Unacceptable Conditions Mr. Nixon's secret effort to get the talks moving as North Vietnamese troops rolled across the Demilitarized . Zone may have been accompanied by conditions the Communist side held unacceptable. This was indicated ina statement issued today in Paris by three members of the French-Vietnamese Friendship Society. who saw North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho in Hanoi April 7, a week after Mr. Nixon put his meeting proposal through the "private channel."

to "go immediately to Paris if States was disposed to seriously resume the negotiations." The statement was in a resume of the society members' meeting with Mr. Tho.

The Rev. Maurice Voge, one of the society members, quoted Mr. Tho as saying: "The United States says it wants peace, but its own kind of peace." the delegation left, they said that Mr. Tho told them: Maybe, I'll see you next month in Paris." Mr. The held several secret meetings in Paris last year with Henry A. Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's national security adviser-

Mr. Nixon indefinitely postponed the Paris conference March 23, saying he was attempting to "break a filibuster" the North Vietnamese.

Mr. Porter recalled today that the United States and South Vietnam said then: We would agree to further meetings if the other side proposed specific topics... related to a peaceful settlement. We also made it clear that if events made it appear desirable, we ourselvae would propose meetings." It was left open at the time whether the United States would propose secret sessions, and this is what apparently occurred April 1, the informant indicated. Neither the North Vietnamese nor the Viet Cong would confirm or deny Mr. Porter's report of Mr. Nixon'e efforts to resume talks today. The two delegations issued statements praising France's efforts yesterday to get the talks under way without delay." The French statement brought an expression of dis-pleasure from the United States. which said it was one-sided and made without notifying the United States in advance.

N. Korea Accused Of DMZ Violation

SEOUL, April 13 (AP).--North Korea has built a 33-mile barrier inside the Korean Demilitarized Zone in a "gross and fla-grant violation" of the 1953 armistice agreement a U.S. Army general claimed today. Maj. Gen. Raymond P. Mur-

Angela Davis Jurors See Photos of 4 Dead

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 13 (AP).—The jury in the Angela Davis trial was shown enlarged photos yesterday of the scene inside a van where four men were shot to death during an escape attempt that the black militant is accused of helping to engineer. Two of the three pictures exhibited by the prosecution were fuzzy, but the third clearly showed the bodies of 17-year-old Jonathan Jackson, two convicts and Superior Court Judge Harold Haley. The bodies appeared nearly piled atop one another. The defense had objected earlier in the day that eyewitaccounts of the August. shoctout at the Marin 1970. County courthouse were becoming repetitive and . "cumulative." In the stark black-and-white picture, Jackson lies sprawled behind the driver's seat, lying slightly on his side. The judge's head is not visible, but his legs are drawn up in front of him, his hands resting on his leg. He was still in his judicial robe. William Christmas, a convict killed in the shootout, lies with the back of his head toward the rear door, and another convict, James McClain, is at the front of

At the suggestion of Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R., N.Y., the committee voted today to attach the Muskie bill to the State Department's budget authorization bill.

With the committee action, Sen. Muskie was able to steal a march on Sen. Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, one of his rivals for the Democratic nomination,

During his campaign, Sen. Jackson has taken a strong pro-Israel position and has received both political and financial support from the Jewish community in various parts of the country. Today's vote could help earn Sen. Muskie a share of this backing.

Jackson Proposal A few days before Sen. Muskie's move, Sen. Jackson introduced a refugee assistance proposal that would have authorized $259 million over a two-year period. The Jackson bill was also referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, of which Sen. Jackson, bowever, is not a member.

Sen. Javits explained to a reporter that he had chosen the Muskic bill rather than the Jackson bill because "it was $35 million rather than $250 million." Even at the lesser amount, the Muzkie bill ran into some protests within the committee, in particular from Sen. J. W. Pul-bright, D., Ark., the committee chairman, and Sen. Stuart Symington, D., Mo.

NEW YORK, April 13 (NYT). ■High police officials reported yesterday that a number of Masia figures had gone into hiding, epparently to avoid questioning about the recent spate of gangland-style murders.

Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy has warned that the real toll of the past two weeks may be higher than the seven known killings, but no further gangster assassinations came to light yesterday. Deputy Police Commissioner Robert Daley observed in grim jest: "They must have run out of bullets."

Ex-SS Officer Gets 7 Years in Death of 400,000

VIENNA, April 13 (UPI).— Former SS officer Franz Novak was rentenced to seven years hard labor today for organizing the transport of 400,000 Jews to Auschwitz extermination camp. Novak, 59, appearing for the fifth time in a Nazi trial, immediately gave notice of appeal. He will be free until the Austrian

Supreme Court hears his case. Novak worked directly under Adolf Eichmann and, according to the charges, organized the transport of 437,402 Hungarian Jews to Auschwitz, where three million Jews were exterminated.

The former Nazi has appeared before a jury four times previously on charges of "aiding murder" and "acts of violence against Jews." He was acquitted by juries twice and the supreme court freed him on the other two occasions.

peared by the time police sped to the scene.

In Brooklyn and elsewhere scores of detectives and federal agents continued their investigations of the murders. They reported that many Mariosi, notably members of the Gallo group, were observing the Mafia rule of "omerta," or silence, and many potential informants seemed terrifled of being killed if they gave information

French Security Police Head Says Trepper Was Nazi Spy

PARIS, April 13 (IHT).—The head of the French security police said today that France had barred former Soviet master spy Leopold Trepper from France because in reality he had been a double agent who worked for the Nazis in occupied France.

Jean Rochet, head of the Direction de la Surveillance du Territoire (DST), said in a letter to Le Monde today that Mr. Trepper, who directed the "Red Orchestra" spy network during World War II and who now is trying to emigrate from Poland to Israel, was not the Allied hero some persons were trying to make him out to be.

"Nobody can contest," said Mr. Rochet, "that Trepper at least agreed to a certain degree of collaboration with the Germans in order to save his life. I leave it to [Le Monde's] readers to decide whether it is consistent with honor and honesty to make him into a hero."

Drum Up Support

Mr. Rochet said that these facts known to the DST were what led France to refuse a visa to Mrs. Luba Trepper, who tried to come to France last weekend to meet their three emigre sons. The DST charged that Mrs. Trepper was planning public meetings to drum up support for her husband.

Mr. Rochet said the DST had numerous reasons to believe that Mr. Trepper was a double agent, He said that after the Germans arrested Mr. Trepper in 1942, though they knew he was head of the Red Orchestra, he had been treated with great solicitation.

Mr. Rochet accused Mr. Trepper notably of being responsible for the arrest torture and death of Harry Robinson, one of the principal leaders of the Red Orchestra. Polish authorities, so far, have who is suffering from heart trouble, to leave Poland, presum. ably on the grounds that as a former master spy he knows too much. Mr. Trepper also spent 19 years in a Soviet prison camp after the war.

Israel, however, has never indicated that it regarded Mr. Trepper as a former Nazi agent He was welcomed there with his family in 1957, and Israel is willing to grant him a visa to return The Committee for the Defense of Leopold Trepper, which vigor-ously denied the DST's charges, has claimed that it would be absurd for Mr. Trepper to wish to return to Israel if he had worked for the Nazis. The committee said Israel was "a country where they have long memories."

At last night's rally held on the eve of the third United Nations Conference on Trade and Development here. Chile's opposition parties called for an immediate plebiscite on the govern-

Observers said that the rally. considered to be the biggest political meeting in Chilean history, must have embarrassed the 17month-old government.

The rally, held in the southern part of this city of 4 million residents, surpassed the expectations even of its organizers.

Eduardo Frei, former Chilean president, whose Christian Demo-crats lost the 1970 presidential election to Mr. Allende's Popular Unity Coalition, made an unexpected appearance at the rally. Sen. Alwyn bitterly attacked dent Allende of importing Cuban timing of Mr. Nixon's visit to Ottawa and Secretary of State Rogers's appearance before the Organization of American States in Washington did emphasize the plain fact that the Western Hemisphere is in disarray.

The President went to consult with Prime Minister Trudeau over concern to reduce the imbalance in Canadian-American trade, and the prime minister's attempts to meet the rising tide of Canadian nationalism.

Mr. Rogers had already been called upon to clarify U.S. policies toward Latin America and confronted a growing sentiment to reexamine the attitude of the OAS toward Cuba. His response was diplomatically irreproacbable, but reflected little of the real issues dividing the nations south of the Rio Grande from the United States-and from one another.

A common complaint against the citizens of the United States, and its government, is that they regard Canada—one of the most complex nations in the world, with a degree of provincial autonomy and diversity that the United States has not known since the adoption of the Constitution-as a kind of hland entity, an extension of a familiar culture. Similarly, Latin America has been considered a Hispanic whole, with little consideration for the elaborate and varied ethnic and cultural mix, the economic. political and historic experiences that make up the southern part of the hemisphere.

But there can he similar astigmatism among the other American nations about the United States. The single most impor-

It may have been coincidental, but the tant fact, the one that dominates most considerations of inter-American relations. is the aggregation of economic and military power that the United States represents. wbether in the old Latin-American epithet, the Colossus of the North, or the more recent image by Mr. Trudeau of the Elephant to the South, the United States has come to be regarded as the hemispheric giant able to right all wrongs, hut too often devoted to extending them. Pablo Neruda, for example, whose reputation as a poet is rather better established than his more recent credentials as a Chilean diplomat, told an andience in New York that the United States was trying to shoot down the soaring albatross of the new Chile, and blamed, on the whole, the "vertiginous growth of your capitalist structure."

> The United States, however, does not have the power, either economic or military, with wblch it is credited. One has only to survey the mosaic of governments, from military to Marxist, south of the horder, and the reason for Mr. Nixon's trip to Ottawa, to recognize that, if it would the United States could not control events in the hemisphere, and that its hegemony is crippled by fears of its size. In fact, there has never been anything approaching hemispheric unity in any form, with the possible exception of some years during World War IL And even then, Peron's Argentina remained maverick. Disarray is no new thing in the Americas: in degree it may be more extensive now, but in any case neither the caose nor the cure emanates, or could emanate, from Washing-

Quickened Economy

Although the unemployment rate inched up again last month, the business recovery appears to be gulckening. Retail sales rose to a record level of $36 hillion; housing starts continued to climb and families increased their spending on home repairs and modernization. Confidence is growing among economists that the earlier forecasts of a gain of approximately $100 hillion in Gross National Product in 1972 will prove correct.

Yet the economy is far from heing bome free. Inflation remains a worrisome prohlem. With the money supply growing rapidly and the budget severely in deficit as monetary and fiscal policy are brought heavily into play to speed recovery and reduce unemployment, it is more urgent than ever that the Price Commission and Pay Board stiffen their resistance to inflationary actions by business and labor.

As a result of the administration's blunder in overwithholding income taxes at a rate important of all, a severe wrench to us. of $8 billion, consumer spending has been tional morale. unduly restrained. In recent months, the

They could not only check bousing but exert a drag on business outlays for new plant and equipment and drive up the cost of state and local government capital projects. A regeneration of inflationary expectations would push interest rates still

But the worst blow to the economy would be a reversal of the administration's decision to wind down American involvement in the Vietnam war. The consequences of reescalation would be a deepening of the federal budget's deficit, another turn of the inflationary screw, a big increase in taxes -and, more difficult to quantify but most

The soggestion that ticket clerks and other ground personnel ought to he able to spot hehavioral traits that are allegedy characteristic of would-be hijackers is part and parcel of the great American delusion that anybody can quickly be turned into a practicing psychologist. Along with that goes the companion delusion that psychologists, even those with genuine professional training, can readily predict on the basis of fleeting observation what people will do.

For thousands of passengers the preflight sojourn in airports is often an unnerving experience which elicits erratic behavior in otherwise rational citizens. International Opinion

Nixon Undamaged

Everything seems to indicate that Nixon will come out of the latest Vietnam crisis relatively undamaged. His massive use of air and naval forces has triggered hardly any major movement on the home front, and if the latest, more optimistic military predictions are in accord with reality, his Vietnamization policy will receive rather impressive justification. He would then be in a relatively good position to resume peace negotiations as soon as the North Vietnamese advance is stopped or thrown back. -From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

Soviet-Iraqi Accord

The Russians have good reason to congratulate themselves on their treaty with Irao. It gives them a position of great influence in a key country. How agreeably the view southward from Moscow has changed. Now India, Iraq, and Egypt are tled up in treatles, providing a chain of friendly and grateful governments from the China Sea to the Mediterranean. This is indeed a very different picture from the heyday of the Baghdad Pact and SEATO.

But the Russians will have their hesitations. The idea of making frag a firm political hase for any long-term strategy must seem as bizarre to them as it will to anyone else. Since the war-when they opened diplomatic relations-and still more since the revolution of 1958 which overthrew the Iraqi monarcby, they have had plenty of opportunity to watch the unpredictable nature of Iraqi policy.

Extremist organizations which this week killed a senior general and the director of Fiat industries here—are trying to bring down the six-year-old military regime headed by Lt. Gen. Alejandro A. Lanusse, commander of the army.

The goal of the Marxist organization, known as the People's Revolutionary Army and the Revolutionary armed Forces, is a revolutionary socialist society in this country of 23 million, the most economically and culturally advanced Latin-American nation.

Political Resentments

Argentina is planued with DO litical resentments and social frustrations that grow out of a recurrent breakdown of constitutional government and stagnation of the economy. The atti-tudes are reflected in a radicalized youth, attracted to political extremism in small but dangerous groups, and a powerful, discontented labor movement coocen-trated in the major cities, particularly Cordoba, Rosarlo and the industrial suburbs of the

There are also numerous indications that important sectors of the mindle class-professionals. small business men and educators, including a significant part of the Roman Catholic clergy share the discontent.

The Moscow-line Communist party, which has some strength in the lower middle class and among skilled workers and intellectuals claims a rise in membership in six years from 10,000 to 100,000 in addition to a youth movement with 30,000 members But the Communists here are moderate compared with the revolutionary Marxist groups and similar armed organizations of the Peronist movement, made up of the radical youths who follow Juan Peron, now 76, who was dictator until 1955 and has been in exile in Spain.

The extremists were said by security officials to have numbered 6,000 last year. The armed forces, which took direct control of countersubversive action, say they have disrupted a major part of the secret cells of five or six organizations

'Professional Skill'

However, the two groups that collaborated in the machine-gun killing of Gen, Juan Carlos Sanchez, commander of the Second Army Corps, and the kidnapping and killing of Oberdan Sallustro, the Fiat executive, demonstrated the continuing presence and "professional skill" of the urban guer-

At the funeral of Gen. Sanchez. Gen. Elbio Anaya, deputy com-mender of the Second Army Corps, expressed the bitterness in the armed forces over what he called "an ambiguous attitude" toward "subversive violence."

The discontent in the working class and among small farmers and young people over political restrictions, economic hardship and lack of opportunity generates sympathy for the extremists as an expression of opposition.

Their views are reflected by the so-called "Third World" priests, a movement of more than 200 priests and several bishops with a radical social Christian ideology who are active among indostrial workers in urban slums and in rural areas. While they deplote United States, as the host counthe extremist violence, they try to the United Nations, is re-

Amoog the followers of Mr. Peron, who control organized labor, there are strong socialist tendencies, particularly in a new Peronist youth movement that joins university students and young urban workers. Among all these groops there is a growing opposition to the government of the armed forces that came to power in 1966, when Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania overthrew President Arturo U. Ilia, the elected leader of the moderate People's Radical party.

The military had custed Mr. Peron after 10 years of rule, and in 1962 they overthrew President Arturo Frondizi, who had been elected with Peronist votes in 1958 as the candidate of the leftwing of the Radical party.

All the military interventions have also left resentment among the non-Marxist civilian political leaders and their followers. Moreover, the military leaders. plagued by internal rivalries and lack of agreement on national policies, have brought on the economic crisis, in which inflation, which raised prices 40 percent last year, is coupled with unemployment, financial distress for small businesses, a flight of capital and a decline of $800 million in reserves in 15 months.

The North Vietnam Offensive

Hour of Decision

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

NEW YORK—Once again to the breach. What is there to say about the North Vietnam offensive this time around?

1) Richard Nixon's determina-. tion to use air power massively to stay the enemy's juggernaut: is not simply a point of pride. Nixon's reaction derives from a commitment to history, annealed by the experiences that led to World War II. Namely: If you let a military power which is strong enough to disturb the peace of the whole world underwrite armed aggression against a little power, the fabric of peace and stability is ruptured.

That's it; the whole of it. And this time around, the North Vietnamese have conveniently discisined the old fiction that the South Vietnamese war is primarily a civil war. The blitzkrieg from the north, across the DMZ, is of a wholly conventional character—tanks, infantry, artillery: It might as well be the Wehrmacht marching into

2) On the other hand, Mr. Nixon cannot help but evaluate the threat also in terms of his political future. People are asking, and indeed are entitled to ask: What has happened to Vietnamization? It is almost three years now since the doctrine was articulated at Guam, and although you. cannot create effective armies overnight, three years is not overnight. If we all lived with a chart-something like the chart that is printed in the daily paper during the Community. Chest drive, which shows us every day the ascending level of contributions which we know will soon reach the goal—and if that chart showed that month after month South Vietnam has developed its capacity to resist until now it is (say) 85 percent prepared, while the day after tomorrow it will be 100 percent, then it would be easier for everyone to understand the necessity for armed aerial intervention by the United States at this point.

Next Year?

But people are asking: Okay, so we succeed this time around. What about next year? What assurances do we have that the Vietnamese are in fact headed towards operational military competence?

3) On this point Mr. Nixon is in a terrible bind Vietnamization is his principal doctrinal contri-bution to the post-cold-war age. Are we now discovering that it doesn't work? Is it only in South Vietnam that it will not work, or is it also eisewhere? Where eise? We have mutual defense treaties with any number of countries, and we have American troops scattered around the world. Is Vietnamization a chimera? If it is will the collapse of it bring down the whole scaffolding of Mr. Nixon's foreign policy?

4) Which brings us, obviously to the question: What is the enemy up to? The enemy in this instance is quite clearly the So.

viet Union, so identified quite explicitly by the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Laird, at his press conference last Friday. Obvious. ly the North Vietnamese were willing and anxious to go along and let us also concede that there were natural factors that were propitious, for instance the weather. FLORENCE, April 13 (IHT),—

Bringing Inner Peace to Paris

PARIS (IHT).—Nancy Sephert, an ex-music teacher who has helped to bring Inner Peace to 50,000 Americans, has now brought it to Europe. sensing that the need for it here may be equally great. The European campaign of the Inner Feace Movement begins Saturday night at 8:30, with an introductory lecture at the American Legion Club in Paris.

The Alice Control of the Alice Annual Control of the State Control of the Alice Annual Annual Annual Annual Co

Miss Serbert and a co-worker, Sylvia Beeler, both ol whom looked inwardly peaceful, talked about their work to a visitor at their hotel. The Inner Feace Movement was chartered in 1964 as a "nonpolitical, nonprofit, nonsectarian corporation." Its purpose is "to help man identify and balance the physical, mental and spiritual forces in life so he can mold his own destiny and become the architect of his own success."

"This is the beautiful part," said Miss Seybert. "Helping people to unfold their latent powers, which in most people lie dormant."

This is accomplished through a combination of Positive Thinking and Extrasensory Perception. They define ESP as "the ability to pick up thoughts, impressions, hunches and energy patterns," bringing "awareness of more than the eye can see, the ear can hear, nose can smell, fingers can feel or the tongue can taste. In some circles it is referred to as the sixth sense."

Endemic Anxiety

Miss Seybert, who joined the movement in 1965. said the American reaction to Inner Feace has been "fantastic." Did she see any connection he-tween this and the anxiety that is endemic in some sectors? What about people on tranquilizers?
Miss Seybert smiled serenely. "They just quit," she said. "They don't need them anymore. They realize they are never alone. Once a person is relaxed he can flow smoothly through life."

How about the nonprofit aspect of Inner Peace? Flow does the movement exist? There are small fees, just enough to cover operating expenses, she indicated. There is a fee of 7.50 francs for the introductory lecture; there is a fee of 10 francs weekly for an eight-week series of two-hour ses-

How does the system work? "Besically man is spirit, soul or electro-magnetic energy," an IPM brochure explains. His soul gives energy to the body. Because man is soul or electro-magnetic energy, he creates by thought or energy. Every thought we think is like a radio wave being transmitted, available for anyone in the universe to pick up. Just as we transmit or send out these thought waves, so we receive the thought transmissions of other minds. We receive them like a radio and respond to them unconsciously, as if they were our own thoughts."

The seat of the Inner Peace Movement is in Oscools, Iowa. Its Prophet is Francisco Coll, "an internationally recognized lecturer and counselor" who also serves as a personnel adviser in business and industry.

400 Communities

Miss Sephert, never at a loss for words or statietics, said there are IPM groups at work in more than 400 American communities. A total of 17,000 have been trained in "leadership"—that is, as Inner Peace instructors.

"In Klamath Falls, Oregon, which has a population of only 12,000, 30 people turned out for one of our lectures," she said. "... The hig thing is to love people, to give without expecting anything in return. The people who don't Believe are now incoming in the people. in a minority"

Miss Seybert also had some positive thoughts on Positive Thinking. "If a person is accident-prone," she said, or inclined toward ill-health, "it has to do with his thinking."

Once you have received and fully grasped the Inner Peace Movement's message, "you have a security that nothing can threaten," she added

The lectures and training sessions here will be open to all comers, of any nationality. Saturday's infroductory lecture will be given in French as well as English. Though she has only just arrived and will he leaving Wednesday, she has seen evidence that the French are as a wild for Inner Peace as anyone else, Miss Seybert said. She relayed, hy way of another brochure, a message from IPM's president, Mr. Coll: "I have seen thousands of lives transformed as a result of the IPM program. Young adults have found the direction for which they were searching, and families have developed more significant relationships through better communication and mutual respect. Business executives have become more creative and decisive in their work, and senior citizens have found deeper fulfillment in the retire-else, she adored Missoni's knits, an exceptional layered look in plaid for daytime and Lurex for evening. "I find them wearable. saleable and besides they bave a fashion punch which I adored."

Miss Bronson was also interested in the new trend for mohair sweaters and found Fendi's furs (mixing fur and fabrics) "sensational. I liked that relaxed, almost fluid look," she said.

Roy Witlin, president of Nan Duskin, Philadelphia, was also reserved. "To be quite honest, I cidn't find any new directions in Florence this time," he said. "Only modifications of whet we had already seen."

"The Go-Between" won the top prize at last year's Cannes Festi-"There are a couple of isolated gems who are doing their own thing. Such as La Mendola, who is for the woman who wants to look conservatively elegant-you know, the woman who comes down the stairs with her hand on the rail"

Kubrick's Brilliant 'Clockwork Orange'

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss ONDON (IET).—The London screens are showing several important films, all of them to be released on the Continent during the next few weeks. Though unaccountably over-looked by the Hollywood academicians in Oscars presentations this week, the outstanding motion picture of the last 12 months is probably Stanley Kubrick's "A Clockwork Orange" (at the Warner West-End). Certainly Kubrick's study of crime and punishment, of aggression and nonresistance, of the zeal of routh gone awry, esks rather than enswers provocative questions. It is subject to multiple interpretations due to its richness end depth. The message on the surface seems to be a warning to keep your doors locked and it reminds one that hopeless cases are hopeless. This has stirred indignant objections from reformers on both sides of the Atlantic who complain that rather whimsical idea of casting "Othello," "The Cunning Little the director betrays a relish lor three Soviet singers in the three Vixen," "A Midsummer Night's cruelty in his graphic depiction of ruthiess violence. The production is superlative, remarkable for plastic composition strong unity of style and effective musical score with Purcell, Rossini, Ecethoven and jaonty jazz as dramatic undercurrents. Lang's "M."

When "The Boy Friend" was first done in the early 1950s there were audiences who were convulsed at the sight of anyone dancing the Charleston and over imitations of the campy, coy ways of musical comedy maids of three decades ago. However, to anyone privileged to have seen shows with scores by Rodgers, Kern and Gershwin, performed by Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers and W. C. Fields, Marilyn Miller, Mary Hay. the chorus lines of Ziegfeld, Coch ran, George White, Charlot and Earl Carroll, this unprofessional burlesque with its faint, tinkling echoes of better numbers was baffling.

Ken Russell explains his film adaptation. He has taken the frail libretto of Sandy Wilson as the "book" of a tank-town show of 40 years ago desperately touring the provinces. Setting It within a scenario, he has lent it amusing perspective. He has staged the production numbers with a fine flair and his backstage romand and comedy provide the needed substance for a basically weak

NEW YORK, April 13 (DET).-This is how The New York Times critics rate new movies:

"Tomorrow," directed hy Joseph Anthony, acreenplay by Horton Foote, adapted from a short story by William Faulkner, has, Vincent Canby says, "decent" intentions 'as "reflected in the accurate look of the production, filmed in Mississippi,") but mostly patronizing" effects. It's all about "survival and endurance of love under circumstances that authors, Northerners, and the well-meaning socially conscious hourgeoiste everywhere find intolerably poetic," Canby writes— "pretty much what the original short story was all about." However the screenplay is "an en-largement, in the playwright's dumbest, television-fake literary style of the 1950s."

he Finance Ministry and Bank maturities of longer than one year are not counted in official reserves. As a result, the bank's purchases of medium and longterm U.S. bonds in March con-tributed to an unusually small gain in the country's official reserves $185 million compared with increases of $521 million in February, $722 million in January and $382 million in December.

March's slower reserve growth rate cannot ha entirely attributed to official purchases of longerterm investment instruments. however.

A sizable portion of the reserve gains in earlier months came from dollars borrowed abroad to prepay Japanese exports. This has been the standard way for Japanese trading companies to hedge against upward movements of the yen. However, the Bank of Japan effectively banned export prepayments on Feb. 24. eliminating this source of inflow in the March balance-of-payments figures.

Another factor contributing to March's slower reserve growth rate has been a program under which the Ministry of Finance has made dollars available to Japan's commercial banks at a low interest rate. The banks then use these funds to repay dollars borrowed in New York or in the Eurodollar market.

. Import Financing . In the future, Japan's reserve growth also will he moderated by a recent expansion of the Bank of Japan's preferential import financing facility. Effective April 1, the central bank announced that it would extend preferential loans sufficient to cover 50 percent of Japanese import transactions, compared with 30 percent previously.

A senior Finance Ministry official acknowledged that a slower reserve growth rate will have a beneficial effect on the psychological climate in Japan, where many husinessmen and some hureaucrats have started forecasting that the yen will have to be revalued again if the reserves bit $20 billion. They now total $16.66

The ministry official said that a decline in Japanese demand for short-term U. S. Treasury bills will help keep the price of these securities low. That means that their yield will remain relatively high putting upward pressure on other U. S. short-term interest rates. Continued firm U.S. in-terest rates, combined with declining rates in Europe and Japan, will belp aid the desired reflow of dollars from surplus countries to the United States, the official noted.

Eurodollar Borrowings WASHINGTON, April 13 (Reuters)—Gross liabilities of U.S. commercial banks to their foreign hranches declined $402 million to $1.124 billion in the week ended April 5, the Federal Reserve reported yesterday. This compared with a $186-million increase in Eurodollar borrowings in the previous week.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Six More Concordes Authorized

The British and French governments have authorized production of six more Concorde supersonic airliners, bringing the total now sanctioned to 16. The decision follows a review of the financial position of the Concorde project. The last review was in Paris in December, when it was stated the development costs would be £835 million. The cost is now thought to be £900 million, to be shared equally by the two

UDS Raises Bid for Debenhams

United Drapery Stores has raised its hid for Debenhams, but the U.K. chain store has again advised shareholders to reject the offer, which it calls "totally madequate." In its new bid, UDS offers three shares plus 210 pence of 6 1.4 percent convertible unsecured loan stock for every two Debenhams, or 210 pence cash in lieu of loan stock. The offer for Debenhams' preference and debenture stock remains unchanged, but is now conditional on the increased offer for the ordinary shares becoming unconditional. The previous offer was one UDS share and 150 pence nominal of 6 1/4 percent convertible unsecured loan stock for each Dehenhams share.

Wankel Patent Dispute Settled

Audi-NSU Auto Union and Wankel of West Germany and Toyo Kogyo of Japan have settled their year-long dispute over patent rights to the Wankel rotary piston engine. Andi reports. The main point of the settlement is that Toyo Kogyo will be able to supply third parties with Wankel engines developed under its license agreement with Andi-NSU and Wankel. Sale of the motors will be subject to certain conditions, which Audi declines to elaborate. However, purchasers of the motors will be able to install them in their own products which they in turn will he entitled to sell and export under certain conditions, Audi

Analyst Gloomy on Fedders' Profit

Analyst Tom Rowe, of Robert W. Baird & Co. says Fedders Corp.'s shares are no longer a buy. ing prospect and should be viewed as a "near-term sell." Mr. Rowe says the long strike at the company's main New Jersey plant has caused bim to reduce his estimate of the company earnings for fiscal 1972 to $1.70-$1.75 a shere from $1.90-$1.95 when the strike began. He says the strike which is in its eighth week, has eliminated any chance the company had of posting a gain over last year's earnings of $1.70 a share. For the six months ended Feb. 29, the company reported per-share profits of 84 cents compared with 92 cents a year earlier.

Austrian Group Signs Greek Pact

The Austrian Steyr-Daimler-Puch group has signed an agreement with the Greek government for the establishment of a $34-million plant in Greece to manufacture beavy vehicles, the Ministry of National Economy reports. The plant will be established in the industrial zone outside Salonica, northern Greece, and will be ready within 18 months. It will have a labor force of 4,000. The Austrian firm undertakes to export vehicles worth at least $4.5 million annually, and will also switch production of trucks now manufactured in Austria to the plant.

Reed International to Buy Dutch Firm

Reed International, the British newsgript group, says it will acquire Van Meurs' Golfcartonfabrieken, a major Netberlands corrugated case manufacturing company. Van Meurs' has an annual turnover of more than $10.4 million and assets of about $5.5 million. The acquisition will be for cash, Reed says, adding: "Acquisition of the Dutch company with its significant merkets in the Benelix will give us an excellent base from which to develop our packaging inter-

NEW YORK, April 13 (NYT).its breath today after the strong upward surge that had lifted prices to their highest levels in nearly three years on the New York Stock Exchange. "Profit-taking and consolidation." declared Wall Street analysts.

The Dow Jones industrial average, the blue-chip barometer now flirting with its 1969 peak of 988.85 in mid-May, slipped 1.43 to "The fact that the widelywatched Dow industrials are in a historically high resistance area bounded by 250 and 1,000 tends to prevent the market from run-ning wild on the upside," noted Newton D. Zinder of E. F. Hutton. "It also results in the now more frequent profit-taking pauses." Lending further supporting evidence to the market's in-ternal strength was the sharp pullback in trading volume to 17.99 million shares—down sharp-ly from yesterday's 24.69 million. Today's turnover was the glowest in eight sessions. Depite the market's generally easier tone, an impressive number of corporate executives forecast profit gains for their companies during 1972. Also, the flow of earnings reports continued to show improvement over last year's figures.

Major Changes

Major price changes included Bausch & Lomb, down 5 1/4 to 106, and Walt Disney Productions, up 5 1/3 to 161 1/2.

Bausch & Lomb sold today at a 1972 low of 102 1.4-a hig distance from its record price of 194 3.4 registered earlier this year. The stock, which tumbled 13 1 2 on Monday, has turned weak on the heels of the May issue of Consumer Reports that advised potential users of new contact lenses to take a "waitand-see" attitude at present. Softens, the company's name for its soft contact lens, is the product that transformed Bauech & Lomb's image from a maker of optical goods into a beoming glamour stock.

Disney, a glamour stock on the basis of its amusement parks and film backlog, turned in a sturdy performance after reporting that quarterly profits doubled over last year's results.

You've caught on to our old idea In the past two years, the sales of Kentucky Tavern have more than doubled. Maybe because Bourbon drinkers in this fast-paced, automated age are hankering for a taste of the easy-going past. And at a fairly easy-going price.

Our Kentucky Tavern has been made the same slow, careful way for the better part of a century. And we're happy so many folks have discovered this great Bourbon from the land of Bourbon. Perhaps, when it comes to Bourbon, the old ideas are still the best. Glenmore Pist. Co., Louisville-Owensboro, Ky.

BRIDGE_

By Alan Truscott

On the diagramed hand many partnerships holding the North-South cards would settle for a game contract, in light of a combined point-count of 27. However, it is easy to see that in dia-monds a small slam is an excellent contract, and a grand slam a borderline proposition. This partnership went all the way to seven, as shown.

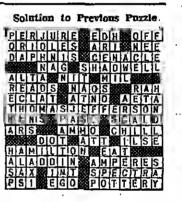

By showing a balanced hand with a disinclination to play hearts in the opening rounds of the bidding, North was in a position to cooperate on the third round when South sug-gested a slam with four dia-monds. North now knew that he held three key cards for slam purposes, and proceeded to cuebid his two aces. At this point South could count on four diamonds from his partner-or conceivably fiveheaded by the king, together with the two black aces. On this basis his final jump to seven dia-monds was reasonable, spectacular as it may appear. He expected to make six heart tricks, five trump tricks, including one ruff, and the black aces. And it all happened as he had planned, thanks to the even breaks in the red suits.

The grand slam would have been an excellent contract if North had held either of the red jacks. As it was it was slightly inferior. The declarer needed the hearts to break three-two, or for either player to hold a singleton jack. He also needed a three-two break in diamonds, or for East to hold a singleton honor. These favorable circumstances represented a 53 percent chance. But the practical chance of success was actually slightly better, since the virtual absence of op-posing bids made bad breaks less likely.

I'M finding it very difficult to allowed Siggi's story to be other. choke back hostility to Siegfried Lenz's "The German Lesson," to resist complaining that a certain ponderousness weighs it down, a certain unwillingness to come to the point, a certain metaphysical elusiveness. I want to indulge my prejudice against the Teutonic imagination, to agree with a not unperceptive student I once knew, who in a fit of exasperation with Johann Fichts (I believe it was) scrawled at the bottom of a term paper the mes-sage that "GERMANS CAN'T WRITE," or to quote Nietzsche in a moment of extreme lucidity, when he observed, "Everything ponderous, viscous, and solemnly clumsy, all long-winded and boring types of style are devaloped in profuse variety among Germans." My inclination is to sum up Mr.

Lenz's plot and theme with a series of questions that may make his work sound somewhat less then compelling. Why is the story's hero, Siggi Jepson, locked up in a prison for juvenile de-linquents on an island in the river Elbe? Why has Siggi been assigned by prison authorities to write an essay on "The Joys of Duty"? Why is Siggi troubled by this assignment, and why does he insist on carrying it out by filling one thick copybook after another with his life story (which becomes the book we are reading) until his keepers grow exasperated and practically beg him to desist?

What is Biggi getting at with this lengthy account of how his father, a rural policeman, becomes obsessed with acting on an order from Berlin to prevent an expressionist painter living m his district (an old friend who once saved him from drowning. of course) from producing any more "degenerate" art? Why, if Siggi has taken the artist's side, did he begin stealing the paintings produced in defiance of the ban? And what the devil does the fish imagery have to do with it all?

I'm urged to answer these questions derisively—to sneer that the conflict between the policeman devoted to his duty and the defiant painter dramatizes nothing less obvious than the divided Ger-man spirit, conflicted in its longing for authority and culture. Something tells me that Siggi himself is supposed to represent the twisted outcome of that character conflict: a boy whoheavy frony here—ends up in prison for stealing the artist's paintings to safeguard them from his father's zeal to do his duty. I'm afraid that the novel's final irony is that Siggl learns nothing from his punishment: He has simply written his interminable analysis of "The Joys of Duty" in response to yet another sense of duty. And apparently the point of the biological imagery—all the details of aquatic species and the references to Darwin—is supposed to be that fate would not have wise that the fate of Germans past, present and future, is lock. ed in the steps of determinism.

And yet I am nagged by the feeling that this treatment is not fair to Mr. Lenz's novel. For the truth is that while I was often tempted to put it down, had to keep reading "The German Lesson." There was something pictorially irresistible about the North Sea coast in which the story is set. It was a relief to read a novel set in wartime Germany in which no storm troopers march or Nazi slogans are shouled, yet in which we could never doubt where we were. That axpressionist painter was a power. fully attractive figure, with itis greatcoat patched with bottom-less pockets, his stolid imperturbability and the comic dialogues he indulged in with an in-visible aesthetician named Bal thazzar. The policeman himself was not unappealing... not at all in fact, it was hard not to sympathize with his slow-witted sense of loyalty and his crude peasant instincts. If ever the Third Reich was pictured in microcosm with its prejudices against people not rooted in the land, and its tiny spasms of nationalistic fervor that added up to an irra-tional howl only in final sun then Mr. Lenz has done it ... has surpassed it. "The German Lesson" will not go away. The solemn drollery of its narrative voice has gotten under my skin, I see; and I suspect that its German original is even more infectious. I can't get our of my mind the scene in which Siggi's older sister, Hilke, goes hunting for seagull eggs with her boyfriend, Addi, and suddenly, the sky becomes a feathered mass of screaming birdclouds, and Add collapses in an epileptic fit. [remember the old doctor who must pause to catch his breath after every halfdozen steps he takes, and who gives his patients a multiple choice of diagnoses to pick from. I can't shake iff the feeling that if Mr. Lenzs fcotsteps are just as heavy as the doctor's, the imprints they leave are indelible.

So where does all this leave us? With feelings mixed to the ex-treme, obviously. This is not a novel over which to enjoy the passage of spring to summer, or a bag of potato chips. It is probably not a book that will appeal at all to an American audience at this late date in the century. But I keep thinking of Van Gogh's "The Potato Eaters"—its gnarled figures crouched in dark earthen space, consuming their meager fare with resignation and travic hope. One does not wi to enter that world, or even to linger with its image. Yet the power of its crude composition remains unforgettable.

The Lakers hlew an 11-point lead in the fourth quarter, mainly because of the shooting of Jon McGlocklin and Lucius Allen for the foul-plagued Bucks. Curtis Perry, in foul trouble most of the game, gave the Bucks big rebounding help in playing the last 9:44 with five fouls.

The Lakers' explosive fast break offense is predicated on rebounding and strong outside shooting, especially from McMillian, Gail Goodrich and West. In Sunday's 93-72 loss, those three hit only 9 of 53 shots and the team made only 27 percent. But last night McMillian, 3 out

76er Cunningham Ruled to Belong to ABA

By Sam Goldaper NEW YORK, April 13 (NYT), -Off-court and in-court basketball made even bigger news than ou court. A federal appeals court in effect ordered Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers in the National Basketball Association "jump" to the Carolina Cougars in the rival American Basketball Association.

Jack Ramsay, who resigned as coach of the Philadelphia 76ers two weeks ago, was named coach of the Buffalo Braves in the NBA.

Unless overturned by the United States Supreme Court. the Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond barred Cunningham from playing with any team other than Carolina Cougars until October of 1974

The high-scoring star of the 76ers signed a three-year, $460,000 contract in 1969 committing him to jump to the Cougars for the 1971-72 season. Before Cunningham, former played a game for the Cougars, he reversed himself, timed a four-year, $950,000 pact with the Philadelphia 76ers, according to court records, and decided to stay in the NBA.

Cunningham has played with the 76ers since 1965 and Is currently under a contract that pays him $225,000 a season plus a nominal bonus through the 1974-75 season.

players, it seems. They have seen impertinent to the businessmen who own them. They own them. They will not piay the game which is, game which is, after all, the national pastime.
Bombing appears, to be the only solution. Baker The Secretary of Bombing is calm about it. Plans are being readied. Acrial reconnaissance is being flown at this very minute to obtain photographs of dugouts and bulipens to be hombed when the signal is

The secretary displays stress Curves showing the unticipated effect of 500-pound, 2,000-pound and 10,000-pound armor-piercing hombs on a right-handed-hitting center fielder.

"But they are on strike, Mr. Secretary, you are not likely to get many by bombing dugouts and builgens,"

The secretary becomes impa-ient. He asks what difference it makes whether any righthanded center fielders are actually hit by bombs. This country has resources in abundance, he explains. It must have the will to use them, or it will become

He points to the department slogan framed in embroidery bchino his desk.

"Don't just sit there," It says. "Bonib something."

At this very moment, approximately $50 million worth of extremely complex bombing equipment is bombing a banyan tree in Laos, he reveals. Later, photographs will be given to the White House. They will be stamped "scoret."

"Bombed banyan," they will goy, "Secret."

There is also the cost-of-living problem. The government is unhappy about the aggression of prices. They persist, in spite of repeated warnings from Washing- Ecker wrote this column.

By Russell Baker WASHINGTON-The Secretary ton, in rising. Bombing appears > retary of Bombing emphasizes. "Look at this." He produces before-and-after photographs showing a risen price which has been subjected to bombing by carrierbased planes. The bombing has bad no effect: the risen price is still rising. The secretary smiles with satisfaction.

"You will observe," he says. "that although the bombing has had no effect whatever on the risen price, it has made me, as a citizen, smile with satisfaction, Why? Because I bave been raised to believe that as long as something is being bombed, and it's not me, the government is doing a good jab.

Has the arrival of spring in Washington affected morale at the department? Most definitely, the secretary believes.
"Being driven to work this morning in my bomber," he re-calls. "I looked out and saw thousands of hrilliant yellow daffodils against the brilliant green grass in Rock Creek Park, and It made me feel so wonderful just being alive on a day like this that I wanted to stop bombing all the lovely spring-green meadows and forests that we have to bomb, of course, what with having ell these bombs and nothing else to do with them . . ."

Feeling that sentimental impulse, the secretary has realized that he is a potential weak link in the chain of bombing. In a moment of resolution, he has, in fact, targeted his own garden for high-altitude bombing should the day ever come when his country, having more bombs than it can drop abroad, will have to start bombing itself. At the door the secretary extends his hand in farewell, says "Bnom! Boom!" and shuts the door. Outside in the traffic, government workers head home crying "Boom! Boom!" At home in suburban streets small boys shout 'Ecom! Ecom!" and say, "Something should be done about this baseball strike." Boom! Boom!

Damn the Flying Machines, Full Steam Ahead

By William A. Krauss

PARIS (IHT).—In Paris there are people who will tell you that bargains in books no longer turn up on the stalls along the Left Bank of the Seine. Don't listen to them.

The chance of finding a Shakespeare First Folio is, of course, approximately zero. In-scribed presentation copies of Joyce, Proust, or the Marquis de Sade ("with awfully warm personal regards") are long shots. But bargains do sometimes slill find their way into the stalls.

One recent Sunday morning Marcel Leleu, erudite bouquiniste whose stand is just below the Pont-au-Double near Notre-Dame, ungrudgingly sold a practically new copy of Galignani's "Illustrated Paris Gulde: 1884" for three and a half francs. No Dead Sea scroll if you insist, but a book of antiquarian fascination chiefly because it talks so familiarly of the passenger ship, that almost extinct means of crossing large badies of water. Remember?

As a good guide should, the Galignani book tells about Paris streets and museums, about the hotels, baths and bars of 88 years ago. But its appeal today lies in Its calm, factual discussion of the staggering profusion of passenger ships once available. Published in Paris by the Galignani Library, distributed in the United States by G. P. Putnam's Sons, the 1884 Guide had 350 pages, with 62 steel engravings of Paris scenes, and a great many glorious advertise-ments of the shipping lines.

Choices

If you, an American, living, say, in Wilmington or up the Susquehenna, had wanted to co abroad in that summer of 1884. there were varying numbers of ships sailing daily out from the North and East River plers in New York. Drop Into the shipping offices any morning, take your pick. Europe was, to the tourist eve attractively tranquil that year-a friendly place, for-

Bed, Bedding and all necessary Utensils' were available at eight guineas the voyage on the Amer-just signed up with Austria and Germany to form the Triple Alliance against France and Russia, but not many people cared about that, Emperor William I. full of years, was gracefully riding the high tide of Prussian prosperity. A man named Karl Marx, who had written tedinus articles now and again for Horace Greeley's Tribune, had dropped dead in Lon-dan, so that was the end of that. The use of electricity for illumination, still a novelty on land, was being put to the test by go-ahead shipowners. It was prominently announced in the Galignani Guide that "the Guion Line have adopted the electric light."

ican Line.

Bravo Guion Line. The company took a full-page ad (good sign) in Galignani. 'ts ships left New York Tuesdays and Saturdays toward Queeustown and Liverpool. and the line hoasted that three of its vessels
-Arizona, Alaska and Oregonwere the fastest ocean steamers afloat. Other Guion ships were named Wyoming. Minnesota. Wisconsin and Nevada, with one unexplained intruder. Abyssinia, 'First 1884 vaudeville comedian, "So long," Second comedian, "Abyssinia." All Guion ships employed that dernier cri. a combination of sail and steam. for propulsion through the waves. The North German Lloyd line advertised 20 ships in transatiantic passenger service. Rohennollern. Hohenstaufen. Eraunschweig and Graf-Bismarck were counterbalanced in terser syllables by Ems. Eider. Oder and Ohio. Or you could book ward-looking, plenty of sound and Ohio. Or you could book money around. True, Italy had a cabin aboard Hermann. The company undertook to move you from New York to Southampton in a lightning-like eight days, unless the weather turned terrible. But never mind, plenty of nourishing meat and potatoes on board. Had you been a stickler under the United States flag, the choice would have been slim. then as now. The American Line (Philadelphia-Liverpool) was the sole passenger carrier flying the Stars and Stripes. To attract custom, the company advertised that 'Every Steamer carries a Stewardess," obviously nice for the ladies. American's "Intermediate" class provided "Eeds. Beddiog and all necessary Utensils" at eight guineas the voyage. Pirst class ran from 12 to 21 guineas, and doubtless furnished smarter Utensils.

The Owner

Bookseller Leleu's copy of the 1884 Guide has the name "Lee Carr" in hlue indelibile pencil on the inside front cover. If Mr. Carr lugged the book off to Paris in his Gladstone bag that year, he would seem to have made attentive use of it earnest thumbsmndges here and there: on a dozen pages, Côte du Rhône stains. 10r possibly a Brouilly.) One page is elaborately dog-eared, page 21, bead-ed "BATHS, &c," reporting that "Paris now has 200 bathing establishments furnishing an average 2,500,000 baths to the public." A week? A year? In any event, the internal evidence is that Mr. Carr was interested in bathing. "Paris also contains 277 lavoirs, or public wasbhouses." In case Mr. Carr had laundry problems.

There is no clue of smudge or penciled tick to indicate which hotel, if any, Mr. Carr favored with his business, but the Grand Hotel du Louvre, "in the Rue de Rivoli." offered almost unbeatable full-page blandishments. Messrs. Chauchard & Cic., propos., pointed to "700 bed and sitting rooms, richly furnished"; to the full pension at 15 francs a day, "including Room, Attendance, Candles, substantial breakfast (2 dishes 1/2 bottle of wines, and improved lifts to all floors." Crowning glory: The Louvre's dining room had been lighted by electricity, "thus keeping the temperature most agreeably cool and fresh."

Return

For his return to New York, Mr. Carr would have had a very wide choice of guide-advertised ships, laaving from Hamburg, Amsterdam. Botterdam, Ant-werp, Le Havre, London, Southampton, and a lot of other places. He might well bave liked the Inman Line, because all their ships afforded "Pianos" as well as "Bath-rooms." National Steamship Company, not to be left behind, bad a piano in every ship too, and their new 5,000-ton iron screw steamer America was challenging tha Guion Line for speed supremacy on the North Atlantic. (Who won?) Meanwhile, White Star played it cool-they sailed from Liverpool each week with no more planes than a prairie schooner, challenging nobody to anything.

Did Mr. Lee Carr ever hear an airplane screaming overhead? Possibly. But would be ever have deigned to cross the Atlantic strapped aboard one? It seems unlikely. Here was a man brought up on gracious ships equipped with Pianos and Utensils and civilized Beds and Bedding. His well-thumbed copy of Galignani's Guide somehow seems to suggest that Mr. Carr would have sported. "Damn the flying machines, book me first class on the Abyssinia."

PEOPLE:

Frenchwoman Writes Of Love for Kissinger

Danielle Hunebelle, 49, French author, journalist and filmmaker, has written a book about her unrequited love for Henry Kissinger, almost 49, who is President Nixon's national security adviser. She says, according to an account by Henry Kamm of The New York Times, that she would never have written the hook if Kissinger had not "betrayed" the "sacred character of friendship."

The betrayal, in Miss Hunebelle's account, consisted in Dr. Kissinger's avoiding her while he was in Paris last July on the way home from his first, secret mission to China and dining in-stead with Margaret Osmer, an associate televisio producer for the Columbia Broadcasting System. "And I cannot forgive," Miss Bunebelle says.

The book, published by Gallimard and due to go on sale next week, is titled "Dear Henry" and it is dedicated "Pour Henry." Its cover, a painting in the Norman Rockwell style, shows Kissinger, barefoot and in blue-striped pajamas, picking up a bottle of milk, a newspaper and his mail from the stoop of his house. The inside of the cover features a photograph of Miss Hunebelle with President Nixon and Kissinger in the Oval Room of the White House. A spokesman for Gallimard said that no American publication of the book had yet been arranged. In Washington, Kissinger was unavailable for comment.

Charlie Chaplin flew into London's Heathrow Airport from Los Angeles yesterday, and an argument broke out between a television reporter and another man as the film star faced reporters. As Chaplin, 83 next Sunday, arrived with his wife Oona from his visit to America his first since he left in 1952 swearing never to return-British Broadcasting Corp. inter- royalties.

viewer Clifford Luton tried to speak to him: But Mo Rethman who recently bought some of Chaplin's classic films for 1750. 000, intervened and a scuffle broke out between the two. Police settled the differences after a short while. Chaplin, who received a special Oscar at Monday's awards ceremony, remained unmoved by the argument. He way ed his hat to the crowd who greeted him. All he would say of America was "there have been a lot of changes." Chaplin planned to rest in a London hotel yesterday before returning to his ncme in Switzerland.
